Body of missing woman found by police near the Drag River

GREG HOEKSTRA
Staff Reporter

The body of Cynthia Horvath was discovered in a wooded area near the Drag River last week, 42 days after she was last seen shopping and running errands in the village of Haliburton.

After an extensive search radiating from the area where the 48-year-old was last seen, OPP officers found her body some time during the late afternoon or early evening of April 17.

Horvath was found near the bottom of a steep, unkempt escarpment on an empty lot at the end of Drag Crescent, just off of Riverside Drive in Haliburton. The property runs alongside a section of the Drag River, but neighbours say police found the body on land, not in the river itself.

The search was conducted by the OPP Emergency Response Team, with the assistance of both canine officers and the Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment.

The missing person investigation was initiated when the mother of two, who lived northeast of Gooderham, was reported missing to the OPP after being last seen in the parking lot of the Home Hardware in Haliburton on March 6.

OPP investigators under the direction of Detective Inspector Guy Faucher, OPP Criminal Investigation Branch, have made a positive identification and are now awaiting post-mortem examination results.

At press time, police were not able to

Drawing for Mother Earth

The students of J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School found a creative way to promote Earth Day. Each student decorated a paper bag which was donated by Haliburton IGA. These colourful bags were then returned to the store and distributed to shoppers on Saturday in honour of Earth Day. Malcolm Hughes, Daniel Nevard and Connor Davies in Dan LaPierre's class didn't mind putting their drawing skills to work for a good cause. Daniel says that by using paper bags, which can be recycled, shoppers can cut back on the number of plastic bags rotting away - for the next few hundred years - in our landfills.

Will Gooderham lose its post office?

GREG HOEKSTRA
Staff Reporter

The Gooderham post office may soon be on the chopping block, after two Highlands East councillors raised concerns over how much the operation costs the municipality at a budget meeting last week.

Questioning first began after council learned that the post office may require upwards of $78,000 from the 2007 budget, nearly $60,000 of which is needed to pay salaries. Though the service operates under the Canada Post banner, the ward 3 postmistress is actually a municipal employee, which means Highlands East taxpayers are responsible for her wages.

Reeve Dave Burton was the first to lob questions at returning councillors Donna

Graham and Suzanne Partridge, as well as CAO/Treasurer Sharon Stoughton-Craig.

"Did anyone ever entertain the idea of green boxes, or mail boxes," asked Burton. "It just seems a little bit unfair that everybody from Highlands East is paying for mail service in Glamorgan."

The question was not initially received well by the council table, particularly by ward 3 councillor Graham who, half-jokingly, replied "Don't even go there."

Clerk Irene Cook told Burton that the previous council had looked into whether Canada Post would take over the entire operation, which would have seen the municipality give them the building rent-free on the condition that they staff it, but noted that Canada Post had turned down the offer.

"Well, doesn't that tell you something," said Deputy Reeve Jim Mackie.

Mackie then went on to say that he had no problems with a post office operating in the hamlet of Gooderham, but said he also felt the costs should be covered by those using the service, not by the entire municipality.

"I have no problem with it if the residents of Glamorgan want to eat the charges, just like Bicroft eats all of theirs when it comes to sewer and water," said Mackie, adding, "It should be user-pay. Why should everyone else have to pay?"

Stoughton-Craig said the post office generally takes in roughly $20,000 in revenue each year, which means the Gooderham post office costs Highlands East nearly $60,000 a year. Glamorgan is the only ward

Helping you is what we do!

It's about time!

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

Well, it's official, spring is finally here!

Last Friday the village of Haliburton watched as the temperature rose and a thin layer of ice slowly melted back into the waters of Head Lake.

By the end of the work day only a few chunks of ice remained near the southwest corner of the lake (across from the high school), but as warm temperatures continued into the evening, those too were soon history.

At exactly 7:53 p.m. on Friday, April 20, the final sliver of ice disappeared from Head Lake, which makes Dave Alexander of Ablett Court in Haliburton the winner of the Echo's annual contest.

Weeks before, Dave had predicted that the "last ice cube" would melt on April 19 at 2:59 p.m., just 29 hours shy of the actual time.

Interestingly enough, only one entrant guessed a date later than Dave, and that was Richard Firth, who guessed 1:37 p.m. on April 23. The majority of this year's 27 entrants guessed the ice would be gone by early April, but an unexpected cold snap put their predictions to bed.

Honourable mention should go to Brian Martindale, who guessed that the ice would be gone by 2:10 p.m. on Friday – only 49 minutes earlier than Dave's winning guess.

Submitted by Lisa Robertson

Head Lake was completely ice-free as of 7:53 p.m. on Friday, meaning summer's just around the bend.

Thanks to all who entered our annual "When Will The Ice Melt on Head Lake?" contest. Special thanks also go to Lisa Robertson, who helped us monitor the ice.

With the closest guess this year, Dave Alexander has won a free subscription to the Echo for a year. Congratulations!

Saving money, saving the planet

Haliburton's Community Housing Corporation saves taxpayers thousands by conserving energy

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

It all began with one bright idea, and quickly led to thousands of dollars in savings.

In 2004, the Haliburton Community Housing Corporation embarked on an energy conservation campaign within their two apartment complexes (Parklane Apartments and the Echo Hills Legion Apartments).

Phase one of the campaign was to replace all fluorescent lighting with energy-efficient T8 fixtures and, right from the beginning, administrator Barb Fawcett says the results were evident.

"We started to see dramatic decreases in our electricity usage," she says. "And the new lighting is actually much brighter than the old lighting. We especially noticed how much brighter the corridors are."

Building on that success, the board of directors then decided to replace all of the light bulbs in both buildings' exit signs with LED boards. Whereas the old signs used two 15-watt bulbs, the new boards required only 1.2 watts, meaning 96 per cent less electricity was needed. Considering there are close to 100 exit signs between the two buildings, Fawcett says the impact was once again noticeable.

"It sounds like a small thing but it was huge when you took it all into consideration," she says.

As a non-profit housing provider, the HCHC receives its funding in both the form of rent from its tenants and subsidies. In Haliburton County, property owners pay approximately 39 per cent of non-profit housing subsidies, so, for that reason, Fawcett says that the board of directors is keen to cut costs and conserve whenever possible.

"We're always looking for ways not only to spend money wisely, but also to save money," she says. "We want to be responsible and respectful of taxpayers and their investment in our facilities by doing our best to come up with ways to lessen costs."

Energy costs were seen to be one of the corporation's heaviest burdens, but also one of the more easily manageable. For that reason hydro bills were targeted first, followed shortly thereafter by a water conservation campaign.

Starting at Parklane in 2004, the board changed all of the building's toilets from 20-litre flush to six-litre flush, and installed low-flow shower heads and faucet aerators in all apartments. Echo Hills followed suit in 2006 and, since 2004 alone, the corporation has seen an approximate 20 per cent decrease in water consumption and saved thousands in sewage charges each year.

"I know it might sound kind of boring but we've saved approximately $7,800 a year in sewage charges just by switching the toilets," says Fawcett. "Plus, the payback for those projects was only about one and a half years so we've already paid them off just through the savings on sewage alone."

After significantly reducing its water usage, the HCHC then switched its focus back to energy consumption. Teaming up with the Social Housing Services Corporation, the HCHC became active in a pilot project called the "Green Light Initiative," a program to lower energy and water use, related utility costs and greenhouse gas emissions in Ontario's social housing community.

In Haliburton, one of the first steps was to replace all the refrigerators in the Parklane apartments with Energy Star fridges. Whereas the old fridges, purchased new when the building opened its doors 19 years ago, would use 1,680 kWh per fridge, the new ones consumed only 378 kWh, translating to a whopping 77 per cent reduction in electricity use.

The second phase of the initiative involved the installation of electronic thermostats in each of the corporation's buildings, which allow tenants to control their heat with more precision, while also capping temperatures at a reasonable level (roughly 25° Celsius).

Since all areas of both buildings are heated electrically, including the hallways and common rooms, the new thermostats are expected to generate upwards of 25 to 35 per cent savings on heating costs.

"With a normal thermostat, if you put it to 20 degrees, it could actually be as low as 10 or as high as 30," says Fawcett. "And what landlords tend to find is that tenants, when they aren't paying their own utility bills, are not as concerned about where they're going to set their heat."

"If it's too warm, it's not unusual for a tenant to control their heat by opening a window instead of turning down their thermostat," she adds. "By having an upper cap, these thermostats encourage that the apartments be heated at a reasonable and comfortable level."

Of course, revamping all the thermostats and replacing appliances has also come with a hefty price tag. (HCHC stands to get $85,000 in funding through the Green Light Initiative). But Fawcett is confident that, like other investments, this venture will pay off in the long run.

"It was very expensive to do that project and it will also be a long payback – probably eight to ten years – but through these projects since 2004 we've already seen a decrease of more than 250,000 kWh so far," says Fawcett. "Just think, that's about 20 per cent of the electricity used in all of 2004 that we have saved."

In the future, Fawcett says the corporation may also target laundry facilities, but at this time it's not a priority since

Barb Fawcett, administrator for the Haliburton Community Housing Corporation, says her organization has saved local ratepayers thousands of dollars by increasing energy efficiency at the Parklane and Echo Hills Legion apartment complexes. "Not only are we saving money, which of course is important, but we're also less dependent on the electricity grid, and the environment as a whole," Fawcett says.

the current washers and dryers are still in good shape.

In addition to that, HCHC may also look at replacing many of the windows in both of their buildings, since a thermal scan (paid for by Green Light) has indicated a lot of heat-loss around the windows.

"That would be another major undertaking that we may consider in the future," says Fawcett. "In the meantime, we plan to put up better weather stripping around balcony doors sometime this spring to cut down on heat loss."

Fawcett says the program's success is due in large part to the co-operation of HCHC tenants, many of whom are seniors.

To date, the corporation has received little to no complaint from tenants regarding the new lighting, thermostats, fridges, or toilets. In fact, a number of residents have actually taken it upon themselves to go the extra mile and install energy-saving compact fluorescent light bulbs in their own apartments, which has Fawcett thrilled.

"Our seniors are very proactive and they want to be mindful of the usage of resources, so we had that going for us from the get-go," she says.

If this all sounds like a lot of work that's because it is. Fawcett certainly doesn't try to deny that fact but she is also a firm believer in the projects her organization has undertaken and the important impact they have made.

"Not only are we saving money, which of course is important, but for the board the issue was more about becoming less dependent on the electricity grid, and the environment as a whole," she says.

"Hydro only keeps going up in cost, but our budget doesn't go up by the same kind of numbers," she adds. "Our funding model doesn't make allowances for extraordinary increases in utility costs, so we would otherwise have to come up with other ways of paying those costs, even though they are beyond our control. That's why, for us, conservation is so key."

Police say investigation is still ongoing give any more information regarding how Horvath died or whether foul play was suspected.

"I have nothing new to add at this point. Unfortunately the post-mortem results can take a while sometimes," said Haliburton Highlands OPP Senior Constable Mark McMaster in an e-mail on Monday morning.

Police are also not saying whether it's known how Horvath ended up in that area of the woods, which neighbours say is not frequented by hikers since there are no trails along that stretch of the river.

"I have never seen anyone go down there," said Terry Dawson, who has lived on Drag Crescent, only 100 metres from where the escarpment begins, for the past 17 years. "When I was little we used to toboggan down the hill...but there's really no reason for anyone to go down there. There's nothing there."

Dawson, who runs a small daycare from her home, said the discovery of Horvath's body so close to her home was unnerving, particularly since she sometimes takes the children on walks through that same stretch of woods.

"I was really shocked. You hear about this lady missing, but you never expect she will be found near your house," she said.

"It's scary, because I just took the kids for a walk down there a few weeks ago. I can't even imagine if we had come across the body then."

Police say the investigation into Horvath's death is ongoing. Anyone with any information is asked to contact the OPP at 1-888-310-1122. An anonymous in Highlands East to incur such costs, with all the others having their mail delivered through systems such as outdoor green boxes or mailboxes in private retail locations, such as those at Agnew's General Store in Wilberforce.

Mackie asked if any Gooderham business owners had ever been approached by a member of council, to which the previous councillors said no. He then suggested that a councillor should do so, which was again met with mixed reaction by fellow councillors.

"I totally agree with you on one hand, Jim. If there were an appropriate space where a private enterprise could operate it then it would benefit the whole community. It would benefit the private business, and people would still have the service, and maybe longer hours," she said. "But on the other hand it's really hard to diminish a community."

"There's going to be community spirit lost, certainly," added Burton.

Cook noted that the municipality is still under contract with Canada Post, though Partridge said there was most likely an "out-clause" that would allow the municipality to sever the contract. Burton then asked his council whether they would rather break the contract, or re-examine the fate of the Gooderham Post Office when the contract comes up for renewal.

"We should leave it until the contract is up," said councillor Gary Stoughton, who had remained fairly quiet in the conversation until that point. "We made a deal when we ran for council that we were going to keep the buildings open."

"Well, I'm not saying we should close the building, I'm saying that we shouldn't be in the post office business," replied Burton.

As the discussion drew to a close, council agreed to have Stoughton-Craig look into the contract's stipulations, in order to determine both when it will expire and whether there is an "out-clause."

Council agreed to revisit the issue during their second round of budget deliberations, which will take place during this evening's council meeting starting at 4 p.m..

Speaker talks frankly about struggles facing Tanzania

NEIL JUDSON

Staff Reporter

As a boy, Japhet Emmanuel would walk seven kilometres from his small village in Tanzania to the market to sell bananas for his mother. His family was very poor and had to sell their livestock—even the last cow—to send him to university.

Now 33 and program director for Canadian Physicians for Aid Relief Tanzania, Emmanuel visited Haliburton to tell his story and show how CPAR is aiding community development and awareness projects in rural villages.

"I see many kids who are going through what I had and I say no!" he told an audience of about 30 at the Family Medical Centre Friday night. "I want to help them be a person just like me in the future."

A government scholarship, family support and a drive to succeed helped Emmanuel earn a B.A. in Natural Resource Management and Environmental Assessment from the University of Dar es Salaam.

Earning a degree in Canada is notable, but it's particularly impressive in Tanzania.

Emmanuel presented a comparison of the living conditions between the two countries. For example, access to water is at 43 per cent in the east African country and 99 per cent in Canada. And while less than 2.5 per cent of Canadians are undernourished, 44 per cent of Tanzanians don't have enough food.

But despite listing such grim statistics, Emmanuel still managed to be charming and engaging. After comparing average life expectancies—46 years in Tanzania versus 80 years in Canada—he said, "That means I have only 13 years left, but I'll see what I can do about that."

Emmanuel's message wasn't meant to be disheartening. Most of his presentation outlined the initiatives organizations like CPAR are facilitating to improve the lives of Tanzanians.

The climate in Tanzania is dry because it rains only three months of the year. With CPAR's help, a rainwater harvesting operation was built which collects rainwater from the roof of a schoolhouse. The water flows into a 30 000-litre tank where it's stored.

The tank supplies one litre of drinking water for each student per day in the dry season.

CPAR also helped with the construction of latrines and hand-washing stands, which are integral to the prevention of illness and disease. Emmanuel said they also reduce the quantity of water women must collect for the kids to take to school.

Emmanuel stressed the importance of sexual and reproductive health education in Tanzania, particularly in relation to HIV and female genital mutilation. According to UNICEF, 25 per cent of women aged 15 to 49 in Tanzania have been mutilated for social reasons.

"We need to show that these girls have their rights," said Emmanuel. "That's brutal."

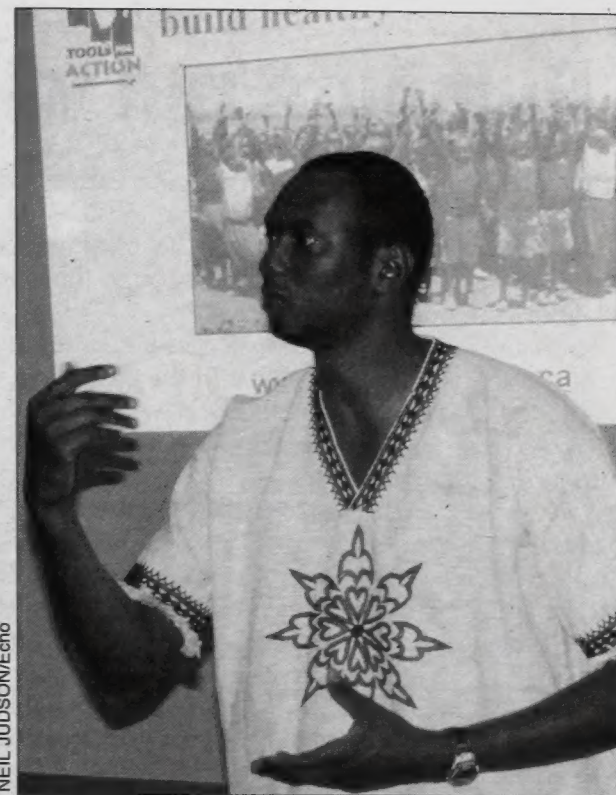

While such a deplorable practice may be difficult for Haliburtonians to grasp, Emmanuel's face lit up describing success stories.

"Has anyone seen the movie Pay it Forward?" he asked, referring to a 2000 film starring Kevin Spacey and Helen Hunt, which revolves around the idea of passing on good deeds. Emmanuel described a program that trains 35 women to run their own chicken coop. The women use the eggs to sell and feed their family. But when a chicken produces chicks, the woman gives them to another woman in the community and trains her to start her own coop.

After the presentation, audience members Ken and Karen Wyatt said they were impressed with Emmanuel and CPAR's self-sustainability tactics.

"Teaching the community how to do things themselves is the way to do it," said Ken Wyatt, who volunteered off the coast of Tanzania in Zanzibar with the British Executive Service Overseas. Ken trained people to work the water treatment system while Karen taught English as a second language.

During the final question and answer period, an audience member asked Emmanuel what he thought of Oprah Winfrey's new Leadership Academy for Girls in South Africa. Winfrey donated $10 million to create the 28-building state-of-the-art school.

"That's good but . . . that's a huge amount of money that could have gone to local schools," said Emmanuel. "Kids are brought together in a very cosmetic setting detached from their community. They won't go back to help. They'll probably come to Canada . . . or the U.S. to live with Oprah Winfrey . . . It's all about implementing on a grass roots level."

Rumours run wild

THE DISCOVERY OF Cynthia Horvath's body last Tuesday may have put to rest questions of her whereabouts, but it certainly hasn't slowed down the gossip and rumours coursing through the veins of Haliburton County.

Plain and simple, the Horvath case has brought out the worst in this small community. In the past week, unsubstantiated hearsay has spread like a wildfire, with no regard for the fact that Cynthia Horvath had both friends and family members in this area who are now trying to grieve and cope with the loss of a loved one.

Some of the rumours being whispered are both cruel and nasty. What's worse is that none of them is rooted in fact or reality. It's almost as though some people find it impossible to accept that there is not (yet) any official explanation, so to make do in the meantime, they connect imaginary dots, fill in the blanks, and create their own conclusion as to what really took place.

Perhaps part of the blame lies at the hands of the OPP, who have been reluctant to make even the most (seemingly) insignificant details public.

Last week, when questioned by an Echo reporter, an OPP officer at the crime scene would not even confirm whether Horvath's body was found in the Drag River itself or in the wooded area nearby. Why such a detail would need to be suppressed is not known, but it seems a far stretch to think that answering such a question would jeopardize the investigation in any way.

At the local level, Haliburton Highlands OPP officers seem to have their hands tied. It's possible that they may know the answers to some of our questions, but strict orders from above dictate what information can, and cannot, be released to the general public during a high-profile investigation such as this.

With the post-mortem investigation now in full swing, it's expected that answers to all of our questions are on the horizon, but until that information is shared publicly by the police, we all owe it to the family and friends of Cynthia Horvath to keep the gossip and hearsay to a minimum.

Haliburton County is better than that. Let's show a little compassion.

Postage paid

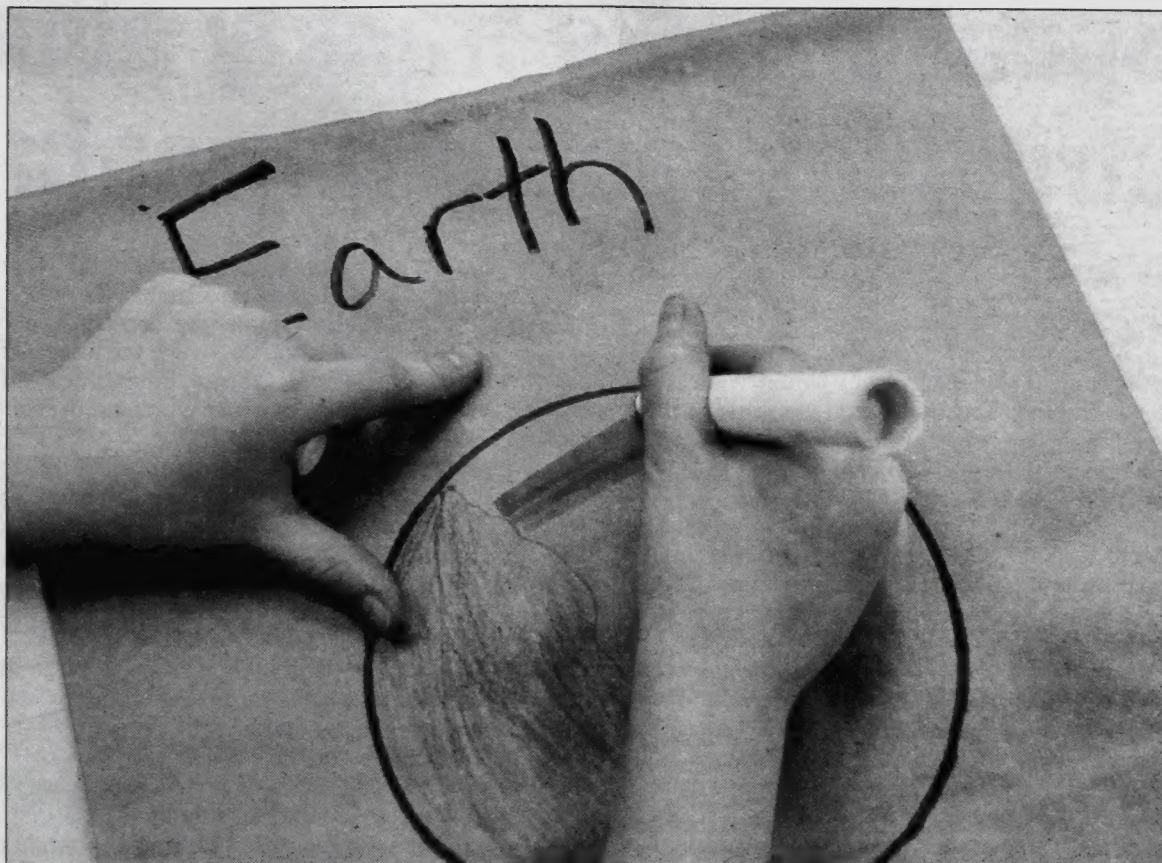

When Highlands East Reeve Dave Burton and Deputy Reeve Jim Mackie suggested closing the Gooderham Post Office at a budget meeting last week, the facial expressions of Ward 3 councillor Donna Graham and CAO Sharon Stoughton-Craig said it all.

Having served through previous terms of council, and both being residents of the Gooderham area, Graham and Stoughton-Craig are well aware of what a hot-button issue the post office is. Who can blame them for not wanting to touch it with a ten-foot pole?

That said, perhaps both Mackie and Burton have a point. Why should taxpayers in Highland Grove be expected to foot the bill for Gooderham's post office, when they themselves have been relegated to outdoor mailboxes?

Before council makes a decision on the matter at their second budget meeting tonight, they'll have to weigh the pros and cons carefully. As the previous council found in 2003, the community at large is not afraid to stand up and fight for their post office, which also serves as a venue for them to pay their taxes, buy dog licences, inquire about municipal services, fax out or receive faxes, and use the Internet for free.

Can council put a price tag on community spirit?

Happy Earth Day.

SOMEWHERE ALONG the line you have probably heard that a weasel is a cruel and vicious animal.

Those who own chickens will tell you that these rodents seem to enjoy causing pain and suffering for its own sake. Well, let me assure you that they've got nothing on a wild turkey.

Just thinking about the cruelty of a wild turkey can make my eyes bug out and my hair stand on end. Have a look at the photo accompanying this column – as you can see, just prior to the photo, I was thinking about the cruelty of wild turkeys. It's that bad.

Here's a prime example of just how malevolent they can be.

The other day a friend of mine was cutting wood in his back forty down the road from here. He stopped cutting to sharpen a chainsaw when, suddenly, a hen turkey walked up to within twenty yards of him and his friend, stood broadside for a few minutes, and slowly meandered off.

I know what you're thinking, but these people did nothing to provoke that vicious attack.

Now to most people, that probably doesn't seem very cruel. But consider that neither of these guys hunts turkeys and I have been telling my friend for the last several years how cagey and hard wild turkeys are to hunt. I have even advised him that you'll probably never see one within gun range unless you remain silent, camouflage up, and stay still. Well, both guys were talking, wearing bright shirts, and moving like clog dancers.

Just like that, this turkey has made all my claims seem horribly exaggerated. That's the kind of awful cruelty I'm referring to.

I have other equally horrifying examples but I don't want to cause anyone reading this to have nightmares – other than my editors of course.

Isn't that enough cruelty though? Now every time I talk to my friend about how difficult wild turkey hunting is he just shoots me a dirty look, the very same kind he gives me when I tell him fishing stories.

The only thing that will cure this agonizing pain is if he takes up wild turkey hunting, which will all but assure that he'll never see one like that again.

Throughout this great province there are thousands of turkey hunters just like me suffering from the cruelties of these birds – this is why we take so much joy in shooting them.

This spring alone, I know of at least three people who have had encounters similar to my neighbour's. Each one of them will snicker at me every time we meet in town, especially during turkey season, after learning that I have yet to get a bird.

You might find this hard to believe but I do not harbour any deep-seated feelings of resentment towards wild turkeys. That's not why I do a happy dance each time I've tagged a gobbler. Despite what it looks like, I am just stretching my legs and arms vigorously to the beat of Copa Cabana. This is completely understandable to anyone who has ever spent the last twelve mornings sitting with his back against a cold damp tree waiting for a stupid bird.

I might do things differently this turkey season, though. Instead of sitting on the cold damp ground, camouflaged and waiting silently, I might rent a tuba and a Santa Claus suit and march through the fields playing Ump-pa-pah music.

I figure I'll have turkeys clamouring to visit. And just when my knees clap the cymbals together, I'll draw my shotgun out of my little red wagon. And then we'll see who the dumb cluck really is.

Waking up

LIKE A SWIMMER SLOWLY surfacing after a long deep dive, Martin made his way back to consciousness bit by bit. He became aware of the sheet twisted around his legs, the smooth warmth of the bed holding him like a loaf of freshly baked bread. Keeping his eyes closed, Martin lay there smelling the cool morning air tinged with moisture that was wafting gently through the window's crack. He could almost feel the pink-grey light of dawn spreading across the horizon. Beside him, Sylvia continued to breathe in a steady rhythm, her sleep-tossed hair brown against the pillowcase. The birds had started singing their praises to the new day, their voices so welcome to Martin's ears after the deep white silence of winter. Their chirping and flutterings surrounded the house as he continued to lie motionless in bed, trying to pick out the individual songs.

Then he heard something different and his eyes opened. It was a kind of scratching sound and at first Martin thought it was a bird tugging at the last of the suet ball hanging on a branch below the bedroom window. But no – it was something else, something different. Now fully awake, he crept out of bed so as not to disturb Sylvia and slipped his feet into his favourite old slippers. The floors were still cold now that the wood stove and furnace were no longer pumping out heat.

He walked downstairs and opened the patio doors to listen. There it was again. Stepping out onto the deck, Martin looked around, his eyes roving over the boards, past the compost bin and onto the patio steps leading to the garden shed. He was about to turn back into the kitchen in defeat when a shadow by the truck caught his eye.

A young bear was ambling around the vehicle, its head moving slowly from side to side as it appeared to be looking for something. It was then that Martin remembered he had left the window on the driver's side down a few inches. Sure enough, the bear stopped and then stood up on its back legs, pressing its nose against the opening. Obviously not smelling anything interesting, it soon returned all four feet to the ground and once it had finished its circle of the truck, it headed for the trees at the end of the driveway.

Martin was surprised. He didn't think the bears would be up and about so early, despite the sudden upturn in the temperature. Just that week he had read somewhere that it was hunger, not the passage of time, that caused bears to awaken from winter's hibernation and to start wandering around. Fortunately for Martin, he hadn't eaten in his truck for weeks. Otherwise he could have ended up with a badly scratched vehicle, or worse.

He made his coffee, still thinking about the hungry bear. What would it eat at this time of the year? The berry crop was still a long way off. He took a few sips and contemplated what to do next. Martin was curious about the direction the bear had come from and if it had wandered anywhere else beside his truck. The scratching sound could have been its body rubbing against some surface or perhaps it had been digging.

Putting a jacket loosely over his pyjamas and replacing the slippers with rubber boots, Martin carried his coffee outside and looked around. He thought he saw tracks in the mud beside his truck, so he placed his mug down on the deck and walked over for a closer look. They were bear tracks all right; clear as a picture in the soft earth. He could see the bear had come from behind the shed and the spot where it had stood up to check out the truck window looked like a bear convention had taken place.

Martin was bending down to take a closer look at the ground when a thought occurred to him and he froze. Sylvia's compost bin was not ten feet away from the parked truck and he had seen her empty a pile of peelings and rotten fruit into it the day before. It would be just what a hungry bear would want, he realized. Perhaps something had startled or distracted the animal, causing it to leave before tackling the compost. The fresh offerings gave off a faintly putrid smell that was undeniable and no doubt as inviting as any honey comb or berry patch. And there was Martin, standing out in the open and very close to it.

Suddenly there was an explosion of rustling movement from the bushes beside the driveway. Martin jumped. Out of reflex, his body twitched in a startled response, his heart immediately bouncing into overdrive before his brain could think. But then, just as quickly, it registered the sound of a partridge making its usual noisy takeoff. Martin gave a nervous little laugh of relief while quickly retreating back to the deck. All was quiet. Even the song birds were momentarily silent.

A soft scrape of metal made him jump again and he saw Sylvia looking at him, her eyes still puffy with recent sleep. Before she could pose the question on her face, he motioned back into the kitchen. Closing the patio door behind him, he told her he had a story guaranteed to wake her up.

Loop Troupe does it again

To the Editor:

Whew! We did it Again. The Loop Troupe of Wilberforce has staged two very successful performances of Mother Variations by Canadian playwright Aviva Ravel.

For weeks we have been immersed in the little world of "Bubby's" apartment, but now the walls have been packed away and we are gradually returning to reality! We are so lucky to have the support we enjoy. We feel that public thanks are in order:

1. To Jim Saunders, John Barker and Paul Hazen for the use of their trucks.
2. To Paul for getting the sound system in the Lloyd Watson Centre to work so well.
3. To Jodi Rupnow of Powerful Designs for her beautifully designed flyers and programs
4. To Agnew's General Store for the notice board and advance ticket sales.
5. To all the local media who helped to promote our production.
6. To the Cross Roads Cafe in Wilberforce for providing a good dinner to a number of our patrons.
7. And last but by no means least, to our loyal audience who spur us on by asking "When is your next play?"

Many thanks. We'll let you know.

ATVers need to get their vision tested

To the Editor:

As I was raking my lawn this past sunny Saturday morning, about a dozen ATVers trundled past me along the Rail Trail, sailing right through the Stop sign posted at the end of our driveway.

What were they doing on the trail? New bright orange signs have been posted at road entrances to the trail — Donald, Pringle Road, and so on — stating that no motorized vehicles are permitted until June 1st.

The conclusions are obvious. We have a bunch of blind ATVers wandering around the county. Be careful out there.

Sincerely,
Jack Bush,
Haliburton

Life lessons with a little leap

JESSICA YOUNG

Staff Reporter

There's no better way to win the hearts of Haliburton youngsters than to give a funny and heartwarming performance about nature's most lovable green animal. Jim Dalling from Faustwork Mask Theatre did just that, delighting children with his one-man play, Little Big Frog, last Sunday at Camp Wanakita.

The story begins when Little Big Frog has been "kissed with a kiss that nearly missed." Like the famous tale many children know, a kiss for a frog means he will surely become a handsome and charming prince. However, the luck of Little Big Frog isn't so great, and instead of becoming a prince, he simply turns into a bigger frog.

Bud, Dalling's character, inherits the magical powers of a Fairy Frog Mother, and goes through an adventurous journey with Little Big Frog on what it feels like to be all sorts of other animals, including an ant and a coyote. By the end of the play, Little Big Frog realizes that being a prince may have its perks but that his life in a small pond also has its advantages. The life of a frog may not be glamorous, but Little Big Frog learns to appreciate and accept his reality while learning more about others.

Dalling pulled out all the stops for his memorable show, using masks, puppets and a lot of physical comedy. Children roared with laughter when he styled himself in a skirt and wig while dancing to music. The giggles became even louder when he pretended to let his skirt slip while his wig hit the floor.

With such a warm reception from young Haliburtonians, Dalling says he'd like to come back to perform again.

"It's my first time in Haliburton; the kids were great," he said after the show.

From the thunderous applause from parents and children, there's no doubt he would be welcomed back with open arms.

Little Big Frog is the final installment of this year's Razzamataz Kids Shows.

Above: Victoria Archibald, 7, cracks a smile at one of Dalling's many jokes during his play. Dalling said he was overjoyed by the positive response from Haliburton children.

Left: Hannah Klose, 8, and Claire Karaguesian, 6, couldn't believe their eyes when Dalling changed into a skirt and a woman's wig. With playful music in the background, Dalling galloped across stage pretending to trip and fall over his womanly attire.

Critically-acclaimed pianist David Jalbert, above, will perform as part of the Haliburton Concert Series on Saturday, April 28 at the Northern Lights Pavilion. Trumpeter and pianist virtuoso Guy Few, below, is also slated to play the series in September.

World-class performers to play at Haliburton's 'one-of-a-kind' concert series

MARION HARE

Special to the Echo

Since 1979, every year the Haliburton Concert Series has brought professional performers to our residents. In both spring and fall, three times a year, up to 200 of us have the opportunity to be their audience. Only through the concert series do we have this opportunity to revel in these offerings so close to home.

The format has changed little; now we have three concerts of music ranging from Classical to Broadway. The location has changed a lot—from the Royal Canadian Legion hall to the Northern Lights Pavilion.

For both artists and audience, the Pavilion provides an intimate space, superb acoustics, excellent sight line for all, an anonymously donated grand piano for the pleasure of both the performers who wish to use it and the audience who listen.

When visiting with the audience during an after-show get-together, Marc-Andre Hamelin, world-renowned concert pianist, commented that he was exhausted by the time he reached our village after a week of nightly concerts in rural Ontario on sometimes less than fine pianos. He told how he sat at our glorious piano and was inspired. It certainly was a spectacular performance. Roy Thomson Hall in Toronto could not top such an evening.

Our great fortune is that we have such opportunities each year at unbelievable prices. The series of three concerts is offered at $50. Yes! $50 for all three concerts. The prices have crept up over the past ten years from $40 to $45, then from $45 to $50, but $50 is still a small price to pay for a series of world-class performances!

I am a Series committee member and am sometimes asked, how can we offer such incredibly low prices? There are three factors; the artists' willingness to come to such small venues as ours at stipends so very far below their usual fees, the financial support of the Ontario Arts Council, and finally, and equally important, a theatre filled with an eager audience.

Again this year, three treats. A pianist, David Jalbert, comes on Saturday, April 28 at 7:30 p. m. He has performed in both Europe and North and South America. He has been lauded by such newspapers as The Globe and Mail, La Presse, and The Cleveland New Dealer. He has recorded extensively.

Our second offering this year is Guy Few, of whom the Vancouver Province writes, "exactly what the concert stage needs." We have the opportunity to hear, see, and visit with him on Saturday, September 15 at 7:30 p. m.

Guy Few is a virtuoso performer equally at home in classical and contemporary music. He is also at home with a variety of instruments. We will be treated to his considerable skill with a trumpet. He is also a professor of music, which means that his running commentary will add to our enjoyment.

The third concert, Sunday evening, October 14 at 7:30 p.m. closes our series on a high note - actually several high notes, for the performers are Canada's Three Tenors, "Romanza," who are coming to us from Vancouver.

Their repertoire can range from classical to folk to pop. Like our previous performers, they are well-known on several continents and lauded by well-known critics. Passionate about their singing, they are described as authentic, talented, and genuine.

After each performance the audience and performers mingle in the lobby of the Northern Lights Pavilion for refreshments and friendly encounters.

Again this year in the Highlands, three outstanding evenings with world-famous professional artists, at the amazingly low price of $50 per series. The dates are Saturday April 28, Saturday September 15, and Sunday October 14, all at 7:30 p m in the Northern Lights Pavilion.

DOWNTOWN BARRIE BY THE BAY

CLASSIC

DODGE CHRYSLER JEEP

145 BRADFORD ST., BARRIE

LOCATION #1

Family Ramble – from Rail Trail to Rails End

Here's a great way to shake off winter and pay tribute to Earth Week: with a community family walk and a couple of cultural events in Haliburton Village this weekend. Young and old are invited to join family, friends and community along our heritage Rail Trail. Enjoy all the sights and sounds of nature, rounding out the day at the old station, now the Rails End Gallery and Art Centre to see art by local teens, and to listen to railway tales from some of our slightly older folks.

Saturday, April 28 at 11:30 am, we'll leave from the town dock, sent off in style by our venerable Highlands piper, Earl Cooper. We'll be rambling South on the old rail bed. The walk takes us along the boardwalk and, once we cross the highway by the base of the airplane, we're on the Haliburton County Rail Trail. Everyone is invited to travel at his or her own comfortable pace. Here's a tip: "Grands" make great walking partners. The small steps by little legs can be easily matched by grandparents' leisurely strides. For brisk walkers, there's an opportunity to tour the Fish Hatchery at Gould's Crossing, thanks to the Haliburton Highlands Outdoor Association volunteers opening it especially for us over the noon hour. From dock to door, it's about 4 km one way. But there are some nice spots much closer for those less ambitious to stop for a rest, eat a picnic and head back. Bring a collapsible chair-in-a-bag or perch on a sunny rock.

The trail passes through wetlands and pioneer meadows before wrapping around behind Barnum Lake. We can expect to see or hear all kinds of bird life. Thrill to the chick-or-eeey or the brilliant shoulder flash of the red-winged blackbird, a chorus of spring peepers, the velvety brown-black, ivory trimmed wings of the mourning cloak butterfly – the only one I know of that hibernates – or the delicate flutter of the lavender-blue spring beauty. Kids can examine the brimming ditches for water striders, frogs or tadpoles.

Plan to be back at the Rails End Gallery and Art Centre by 2 p.m. for this month's Family Saturday, offering two family-oriented shows. This is your first chance to see the video called "Old Rails, Remembered Tales" that was taped by George Farrell at the Critters & Trestle dinner back in February. That evening, Haliburton residents recounted stories from the days when trains were a vital feature of community life. Thanks to George, and Tammy Rae of Highlands Media Arts for capturing these stories as video archives. Remember as you're watching that these thundering trains were travelling the same rail bed that we just walked.

And this will be the last day to see Necessities, an artistic and thoughtful reflection on the theme, "What do we really need?" by the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Portfolio Class. The theme ties in nicely with Earth Week, and fills the main exhibition space with life and colour.

Family Ramble – from Rail Trail to Rails End is another first annual event conceived by Friends of the Rail Trail, Haliburton's newest cultural heritage group, whose mission is to connect community and Rail Trail through events, education and partnerships. The walk is free and open to all, including any community-minded dogs – on a leash, please. Donations are optional at the Hatchery or Gallery, and memberships in Friends of the Rail Trail may be purchased for only $5.

As with any outing, a few suggestions: dress in layers for the weather—boots would be ideal, bring a water bottle, picnic, something to sit on, nature guides, binoculars, camera and enthusiasm! Call Pamela Marsales at 457-4767 if you have any questions.

Municipalities to cash in on gas tax

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

Local municipalities will see more money from the federal government over the next seven years, as a result of recent budget announcements by Finance Minister Jim Flaherty.

In a letter to Highlands East Reeve Dave Burton, Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MP Barry Devolin explained how two new policies will lead to an increase in funds for the municipality.

For one, Devolin noted that the 2007 budget has extended the Gas Tax Fund transfer program for another three years at the full five cents per litre. As a result, municipalities now have "a seven-year commitment to help develop their capital plans."

For Highlands East this will mean an influx of $39,000 in 2007-08, $49,000 in 2008-09, and $98,000 each year from 2009 until 2014.

In addition to that, Haliburton County will also receive $196,000 in 2007-08, $245,000 in 2008-09, and $490,000 each year from 2009 to 2014.

Likewise, Devolin also pointed out that municipalities now stand to receive a 100 per cent GST rebate on all purchases, which he said will lead to "thousands of dollars in savings for municipalities such as yours."

In the past, municipalities have received a GST rebate of 57 per cent on all purchases,

The announcement was welcome news for Highlands East councillors, particularly as they head into their own budget deliberations this week.

"It's nice to see more money coming our way," said Burton.

Police bust noisy party on Irish Line

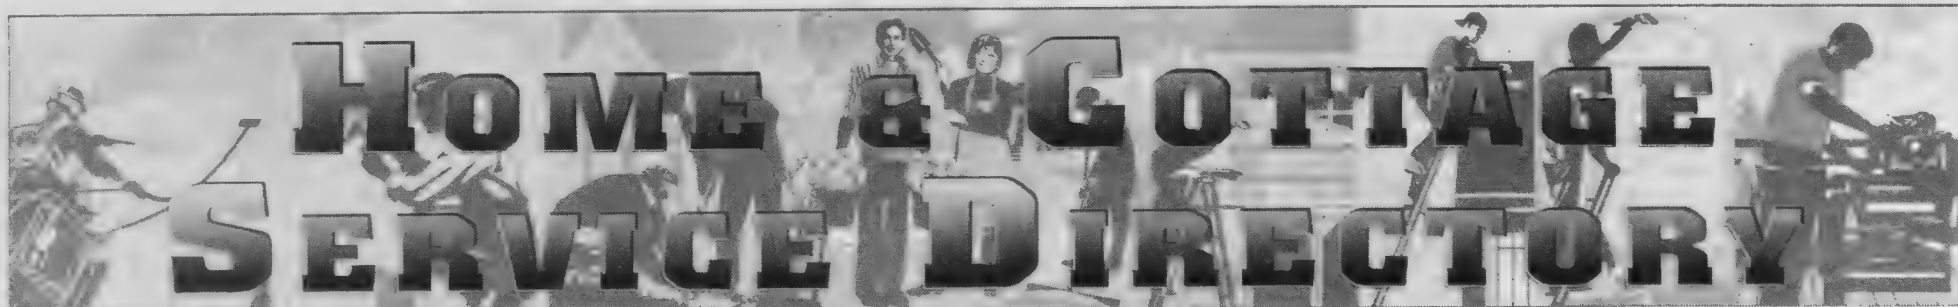

Officers from the Haliburton Highlands Detachment attended the scene of a field party late Friday night after receiving a noise complaint on the Irish Line in Guilford Township.

Officers attending the scene spoke to a group of about 40 youths who were partying in the field. The youths did not have permission from the property owner to be on the property and were removed. Officers at the scene also had to call an ambulance for a youth who had consumed too much alcohol.

There was some minor property damage done at the scene of the party and the investigation is ongoing.

Police are asking anyone with information to contact the OPP at 1-888-310-1122 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS (8477).

Crime Stoppers is completely anonymous and does not subscribe to call display. You will not testify in court and you may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $2,000.

Where are the loons?

To the Editor

The ice on our lake has been out for a few days now and still the loon has not arrived. This is puzzling.

In previous years, he has been waiting anxiously in the bay, usually a full week, for the last of the ice flows to disappear. Then he and his mate, who accompanies him shortly after all the ice is out, would swim proudly across our lake with all the usual loon calls, namely "We're back!"

This year the lake is silent. The striking black and white feathered couple are nowhere in sight. (The only ones that seem happy with this arrangement are the mergansers, geese and mallards. They are swimming around the lake like they own it).

It seems that our lake is not the only loonless one. They all seem to be missing one integral part of spring, the arrival of the loon.

I hope that this is just a fluke and not something man has somehow interfered with to cause the disruption in what has always been a normal migration to all our lakes. I can't begin to imagine what cottage life would be like without the handsome couple in a black and white tuxedo.

When and if the loons arrive back, it is time for us all to take the necessary steps to preserve their continual migration in years to come.

This is definitely a wake-up call.

Keeping an eye on Nature's and Loons' vital signs,
Arlene Johnston

Study shows plants pose possible health risk

To the Editor:

A while ago I read a letter requesting facts about the asphalt industry and the person who wrote the letter implied that the people in Irondale don't have a justifiable reason for not wanting the plant. I took it as a personal challenge to come up with a factual reason why we don't want this in our "backyard" so to speak. I found a report done for Environment Canada by an independent consultant.

The purpose of the report was to determine whether emission reductions were possible.

I know most of the people who read this won't have time to sift through the 122 pages so I will attempt to sum it up.

Keep in mind I am not an expert and this is my interpretation from reading the report. I encourage everyone to read it and come to their own conclusions.

The main source of data is from the U.S. but the same technology is used here. Page 21-25 of the report covers emissions from particular types of plants. Page 30-39 covers a "Hypothetical" plant. They all produce polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons which are listed as toxic.

Since I don't know the specific type of plant they plan on putting on the site, only that it is "newer" and they say they are using a "Baghouse". There is such a wide range of emissions depending on the type and amount of filtration there is no way to tell exactly how "controlled" the emissions are.

So I ask people who are living near and travelling past this plant to ask themselves, Do I really want this source of pollution in your backyard? I also ask those who support the plant, Is it worth your health and those of your family and friends for the sake of a few jobs, if any?

Particulate matter goes where the wind goes and it can travel up to 20 km. That's a rather large backyard if you ask me. I hope this demonstrates the factual reasons as to why we don't want this plant in our area. (Incidentally I live within 5 km from Bark Lake).

Here is the link for those who want to read the whole report: http://www.ccme.ca/assets/pdf/hot_mix_asphalt_final_merap_e.pdf

Sincerely,
Peter Gautreau

Woman in Black tells a chilling tale

GREG HOEKSTRA

Staff Reporter

Last week the Highlands Little Theatre offered a glimpse into the darkest depths of the spirit world with four straight performances of the psychological thriller The Woman in Black, directed by Caryl Miller, at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion in Haliburton.

At its root, the play is about a young junior solicitor, Arthur Kipps, who wishes to share with the world his horrifying encounters with an unworldly troubled spirit – the woman in black. In the hopes of doing so, Kipps hires an actor to help him become a more confident public speaker, but during a series of meetings, the two end up turning Kipps' tale into a theatrical production, in which the actor plays the role of Kipps, while Kipps plays the roles of everyone but himself. (A unique approach, certainly).

The play is set in a small Victorian theatre, while the play within the play is set at Eel Marsh House, a "tall, gaunt, and isolated" old home overlooking salt marshes somewhere on the bleak and remote East Coast of England.

There, at Eel Marsh House, Mrs. Alice Drablow once lived – and died – alone. As a solicitor, Kipps is ordered by his firm to travel up from London in order to attend the funeral and sort out Mrs. Drablow's financial papers. It is there that he will encounter the woman in black – a tormented soul with a wasted, sullen face who terrorizes him and eventually takes the life of both his wife and young child.

The Woman in Black was a thrilling production that left audiences at the Pavilion feeling unnerved. Through vivid imagery and unbridled emotion, the two lead actors, Mike Johnson (the actor Kipps) and Tim Nicholson (the actual Kipps), painted a grim and macabre landscape, to the point

MARTHA PERKINS/Echo

Without saying a single word, Lea Harper gave an eerie and unsettling performance as the woman in black, a tormented soul who haunts the Eel Marsh House on the Eastern Coast of England.

where audience members could almost feel the moist fingertips of a heavy English fog roll through the theatre to tickle the napes of their necks.

Nicholson's performance was nothing short of outstanding. Taking on the roles of several different characters, he managed to separate their identities for the crowd by adopting extremely convincing traits for each character. By perfecting the accents, demeanour, and even posture of his multiple characters, Nicholson helped to keep the story line from becoming muddled and confusing. Line after line, he remained in top form, never wavering from his role until it was time to move on to the next.

Johnson, too, gave an incredibly moving performance as the actor playing Kipps, including a number of scenes where the weight of the play rested upon his shoulders. At one point in the performance the theatre is swallowed by complete darkness, and the audience is drawn to Johnson's face, lit only by candle, as he creeps about the haunted, empty house with a panic-stricken face so convincing that it remains fresh in my mind four days later.

Though it may not have been a gory or graphic horror show,

Tim Nicholson, left, reads to a skeptical Mike Johnson from his memoirs, describing in full detail his ghoulish encounter with the dreadful woman in black.

Johnson's character, a young solicitor named Arthur Kipps, travels by horse and buggy to the secluded home of the late Mrs. Drablow.

The Woman in Black, was by all means a chilling assault on the audience's nerves. Much of this was a result of the compelling performances by both Nicholson and Johnson, but also due in large part to the sinister and malevolent role of "the woman," who was played by Lea Harper.

Without a single word spoken, Harper still managed to send chills down the spines of all those in attendance, through menacing facial expressions and unsettling body movements. At times, one would swear she was drifting across the stage with the weightlessness of an actual spirit, en route to terrify the unsuspecting and fretful Mr. Kipps.

From eerie sound effects, to mood-inducing lighting, last week's performances of The Woman in Black played off its audiences' senses in order to create a sense of restlessness and anxiety.

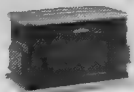

In the play's program, director Caryl Miller wrote "you may have paid for a seat tonight, but you won't be using all of it – you'll be on the edge!" A quirky and fun statement, for sure, but also a true one for many in the audience, including none other than yours truly.

Ontario's fishing regulation changes delayed

Mark your calendars, the start of next year means regulation changes when making your next big catch.

The new Ontario Fishing Regulations will come into effect on January 1, 2008 with the accompanying Ontario Recreational Fishing Regulations Summary (Fishing Summary) expected earlier. "By implementing the new fishing regulations at the beginning of a new year we will be in keeping with 'tradition' said Natural Resources Minister David Ramsay. "Most anglers are aware that this is typically when regulation changes are made so this timing allows for clarity and consistency."

The regulation changes are part of the ministry's new ecological framework for recreational fisheries management in Ontario. This includes managing fisheries on a zone basis rather than on an individual lake basis and replacing 37 fishing divisions with 20 fisheries management zones. To come into effect, these regulations must be approved by the federal government. The Ministry of Natural Resources and the Department of Fisheries and Oceans have been working closely to complete the approval process.

Anglers should continue to use the 2005-2006 regulations and current Ontario Recreational Fishing Regulations Summary throughout 2007, with the exception of the following changes that took effect January 1, 2007:

- The walleye season is open year-round on all of Lake Erie. The catch and possession limit for walleye in the eastern basin of Lake Erie has increased to six fish from four.

- On Lake Nipissing, the winter season for walleye and some other species has been extended by one week. This change, along with a longer fall season applies to the entire lake including the West Arm. There have also been some changes to walleye and pike catch limits in the West Arm to be consistent with the rest of Lake Nipissing.

- On Golden Lake, the walleye fishery is re-opening after being closed for five years. There will be a 50 cm minimum size limit, and a catch and possession limit of two walleye (under a sport fishing licence) and one walleye (under a conservation fishing licence).

- The province has extended the bass season across the province by moving the opening day from the last Saturday in June to the fourth Saturday in June. The 2005-2006 regulations and current fishing summary are available at ServiceOntario/Government Information Centres outlets and from most licence issuers as well as on the ministry's website at ontario.ca/mnr/. The updated fishing summary should be released later this year.

To fish, Ontario residents must have a valid Outdoors Card and fishing licence. Non-residents must have a valid fishing licence before they may fish in Ontario waters.

Wilberforce Elementary creates fine finger artwork

Wilberforce Elementary School children got a chance to create some messy peices of art last Wednesday with local artist Gary Blundell. The school also got some ear candy from Barry Hayward who performed on the drums. This is the third year in a row that local artists have made their mark inside WES. Connecting with local artists is made possible through funding from the Arts Council and the Trillium Lakelands Board of Education Program Enhancement Fund. Organizer Daniela Pagliaro and the Haliburton Arts Council work tirelessly to organize classroom visits and to make sessions that cater to cirriculum expectations.

Explore trails and raise money for Hospice

Looking for a way to spring into spring? Why not get active by exploring one of our local trails and, at the same time, raise money for SIRCH Community Hospice.

Sunday, May 6 is the fifth annual nationwide Hike for Hospice, sponsored by the Canadian Palliative Care Association. More than 100 hospices across Canada will be hosting hike events on this date to raise awareness of, and funds for, palliative care in their communities. Haliburton County will be joining this initiative for the third year to raise funds for SIRCH Community Hospice.

For over 10 years, SIRCH Community Services and Consulting has provided hospice services in Haliburton County to individuals and their families who are living with a life-threatening illness. Government funding has not kept pace with demand for this service; there is and will continue to be a need for financial support from our community.

People can participate and support hospice by collecting pledges and then hiking the Head Lake Trail (about 6 km) or the Sculpture Forest Trail (about 1 km). It's a great opportunity to build workplace spirit by getting active together. Team up and have some fun. Gather a group of friends, colleagues, neighbours, family members and sign up as a team of up to 10. Be creative. There will be a trophy for the team that collects the most dollars in pledges and a special draw for all participating teams, so get into the team spirit! One hundred per cent of funds raised will stay in this community to support hospice.

To participate as a team or individual, just pick up a copy of the pledge form, and start collecting pledges to hike. Forms can also be downloaded at www.sirch.on.ca and click on "What's New". Hike registration starts at 12:30 p.m. on May 6 at Sir Sandford Fleming College in the Great Hall. The hike starts at 1:30 p.m. There will be other fun activities, too, including draws, entertainment and refreshments.

Everybody wins when you Hike for Hospice: hike for your health, and for your community. For more information, please contact Marilyn Rydberg, Hike Co-ordinator at 754-9667.

On May 6, join fellow walkers for the fifth annual Hike for Hospice.

Awards presented to Wilberforce curling club members at dinner

Members of the Wilberforce Curling Club gathered on Thursday, April 19, to celebrate a good season of play. After a delicious dinner served by the Ladies Auxiliary at the Wilberforce Royal Canadian Legion the presentation of league and playoffs awards was led by President Doug Stephen.

The Monday night mixed league awards were presented by convener Jim Donovan. In the first half the winners were Stu Garland (Skip), Cathy Garland, Carol Monaghan and Brian Monaghan. In the second half of the season the winners were Blaine Lewis (Skip), Daryl Sands, Tracey Lee Green, and Ron Burns.

The Tuesday night mixed league also divided their season into two parts with no playoffs. The first half winners were Melannie and/or Blaine Lewis (Skip), Craig Bowker, Joann Bugg and Carolyn Barnes. In the second half the winners were Gerry Guyton (Skip), Karin Hayes, Robert Clarke and Debbie Cachia. Convenor Doug Stephen presented these awards.

Doug, in the absence of convener Joe Martinek, also presented the awards for the Wednesday Seniors' league. Winning both the league and playoffs was the team of Joe Martinek (Skip), Colleen Ward, Nadia Martinek, with George Weatherill playing until mid-December, and Ginny Carmichael completing the season.

Manfred Stelter, who convened the Thursday night Men's League, presented the awards to winners in that league: Stu Garland (Skip), Mac Gadway, Byron Kellar, and Ron Roberts.

It was a good season of curling, thanks to the many people who volunteer to organize leagues and bonspiels. Curlers greatly appreciate their efforts.

Boogie Wonderland Recital 2007 will take place on Saturday, April 28 at the Lloyd Watson Centre in Wilberforce. This is a recital of dances learned at the Highland Grove Dance Centre and Loyalist College of Dance over the past season. Participants range in age from 2.5 years to adult. The dance recital begins at 6 p.m. Adult admission is $5, children under 12 are free.

A very upbeat music time was enjoyed at the Maple View on Saturday afternoon, April 21. The recreation room was filled with many residents of Maple View who came to enjoy and, in some cases, to be part of the program. Others from the community were there to enjoy the music and/or to present.

The children from the Full Gospel Church led by Melannie & Elwood Storey joyously sang some choruses followed by pastor Al Hilgendorf on guitar with wife Cathy playing and singing.

From the Harcourt Community Chapel, Charles Hughes accompanied by wife Evonne on piano sang songs that appealed to the many seniors; one such song was entitled "Worn Out." Young Ms. Savard from the chapel sang a solo of Jesus Wants Me For A Sunbeam. Gerrard Mumford sang and played guitar.

Well-received were the numbers sung by the choir from the Wilberforce United Church with their trio and accompanied by Margaret Dugas on piano.

From St Margaret's Anglican Church, Catharine Goverde read a touching poem, Mark Bramham played a trumpet solo and The Quartet ended their part with an audience-pleasing rendition of "I'se The B'y."

The blessing given by Reverend Faun Harriman was followed by a sing-a-long accompanied by Marg Dugas and led by Sandy Hall who also emceed the program.

Flo Taylor, who initiated and organized the event, was delighted with the afternoon of music and appreciated the efforts of all participants. Flo and Sylvia Tallman arranged the refreshments contributed by St. Margaret's people.

The Loop Troupe has appreciated all the kind responses to their recent presentation of Mother Variations. The Troupe will hold an annual meeting on Wednesday April 25 at 6:30 in the Lloyd Watson lounge.

Congratulations to parents Ryan and Fran Goodall, and grandparents Leanne and Ken Goodall on the arrival of Emily Kate (sister for Keira), born in Cobourg Hospital on April 11. Leanne and Ken had vacationed in Cuba for two weeks prior to the new arrival.

Welcome to the Cirtwill household, our new neighbours Ben, Susan and Paul, as they settle in to the residence formerly owned by Lois Boice.

Happiness is the presence of our youngest, Andy, home just for a day en route to Ottawa and a three day conference there before a six-week training mission in Halifax. Andy is a submariner in the navy.

The Jack and Jill shower at the centre on April 21 had a western theme as family and friends gathered to celebrate the future wedding of Sara Sisson and Andy Burtch.

The guests wore cowboy hats and some even wore cowboy boots as they enjoyed games and the music of Jamie Bacon.

As a child and later in my adult life, I always looked forward to productions of the Wizard of Oz. This past weekend I went to see a high school version of it with my daughter and granddaughter. It was an outstanding production. As Evelyn Nown indicated, "Perhaps parents would enjoy their children more if they stopped to realize the film of childhood can never be run through for a second showing." Spending time with your children and grandchildren can be a very rewarding experience.

There will be a gathering of families throughout the county to take part in an old-fashioned "family ramble—from Rail Trail to Rails End." This promises to be a delightful day for families on Saturday April 28. The walk will take you along the quiet, scenic section of the Haliburton County Rail Trail to the Haliburton Highlands Fish Hatchery. The trail winds around behind Barnum Lake to the original "First Crossing" at Gould's Crossing. At the fish hatchery families can enjoy an open house and then walk back along the trail to the Rails End Gallery where there will be a special video presentation entitled "Railway Stories". The video was compiled here in Haliburton and features special guests from the Haliburton Community who shared their personal railway tales. Also on display will be an exhibition of art by the portfolio class of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Bring a lunch and please join others in this family venture. The round trip is approximately 6 km and there is no fee. If you wish to assist the gallery and hatchery please make a donation.

Just a reminder – on Saturday April 28 the Trillium Lakelands District School Board will be hosting its secondary annual Safe and Caring conference for parents. There is no cost to attend but parents are asked to register in advance. Free childcare for children under 8, lunch and transportation to conference in Lindsay is available. For further information or to register please visit the TLDSB website at www.tladsb.on.ca.

Upcoming events for Harcourt and surrounding communities:

April 26: Progressive euchre Thursday evening starting at 7:30 p.m. Harcourt Community Centre. For further information please call Mel Smith at 448-3640.

Rails End presents paintings exploring feminine realm

"My painting is tied to the levels of experience encountered in daily life. Family is a microcosm of all human drama." Rose Pearson

The Rails End Gallery and Arts Centre is very pleased to present new paintings and assemblages by local artist Rose Pearson. A recent recipient of an Ontario Arts Council emerging-artist grant, Rose's current work explores the feminine realm and celebrates domesticity.

In the tradition of artists such as Mary Pratt, V. Jane Gordon and Shary Boyle, Pearson creates art with priorities that are currently marginalized in the art world. Pearson's painterly language is intuitive and emotional, as opposed to formal. As art writer Lorissa Sengara states, the focus on formality in the art world supports the "cool viewing distance that much current art encourages or demands."

Pearson's work aids in softening the viewing distance, inviting us to engage in a dialogue that is more heart than head. REAL ESTATE UPDATE

SAVE FINANCIAL HEADACHES

QUESTION: I want to sell my home on my own. How much do I have to know about financing?

ANSWER: You had better start a cram course on financing. How much money will you want down? How will you determine the prospect's credit history? How much cash should you get with the offer? Will you accept a second mortgage? Can you advise prospects on where to get mortgage funds and help them through the process? Who will pay what closing costs?

Honestly, the best way to sell your home, probably your most valuable asset, is through a Realtor. It must make sense. Over 75% of homeowners do it.

YOU'LL HAVE TO BE A FINANCIAL expert if you try to sell your home on your own.

WINTERGREEN MAPLE SYRUP AND PANCAKE BARN
Located in Gelert, #3325 Gelert Rd. Open all weekends (Sat and Sun) from March 3rd to April 29th, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.
IT'S "SUGARING OFF" TIME!
Early spring heralds the annual "sugaring off" in the sugar bushes of Haliburton County. It's a wonderful time to get the family out in the open air and sunshine to experience one of our country's most traditional family activities. Come and view the evaporation process through the glass wall in our restaurant while savouring freshly made maple syrup on pancakes, French toast, baked beans, and complimented by our specially prepared farmer's sausages. Join us at 2 p.m. for a visit to sourdough Sam's cabin and a sugary taste of sugar-on-snow. A wide variety of maple products are available in our retail area along with our specialty BBQ sauces, jams, jellies, preserves, mustards, and fruit syrups. Beautiful hand-turned bowls made from a variety of woods selected from our forest. Turned green and air dried to produce family heirlooms, made to last for generations. EASTER EGG HUNT in the Sugarbush Fri/Sat/Sun of Easter weekend. Reserve your tickets early for Ryan Dawson's production of "THE EXILED" at the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion Sat. May 19th. One performance only - 8 p.m. Tickets $10. Thank You Cards

The family of the late EILEEN AGNEW would like to extend a sincere THANK YOU to all the wonderful people who helped us cope with mom's illness and death. Your kind words, thoughtful deeds, flowers and "comfort" foods were greatly appreciated.

We would also like to express our gratitude to the Haliburton County Access Centre for so efficiently coordinating the wonderful support system that enabled us to keep Eileen at home during her illness. Where would we have been without all the strangers who suddenly appeared from nowhere and quickly became our new friends and pillars of strength: the Personal Support Workers (PSWs), nurses, social worker, and our Hospice volunteer? All of you greatly improved the quality of mom's last few months, and the stability of our sanity. Each of you should be commended for the vital roles you play in the community.

A special thank you to: Dr. Hayes, the nursing staff at the Haliburton Hospital, Monk's Funeral Home, Rev. Faun Harriman and members of St. Margaret's Church for being there when we needed you.

Additional thanks to everyone who made memorial donations on Eileen's behalf.

A life well-lived leaves behind a beautiful bouquet of memories. Perhaps that is why Mom always told us to stop and smell the flowers.

Eileen's family invites you to join them for a Memorial Service Sunday May 6, 11:15 a.m. at St. Margaret's Anglican Church, Wilberforce.

In memoriam

HAYWOOD, Ross - In loving memory of a wonderful Dad & "Pops" who passed away April 28, 2004.
I have only your memory, dear father,
To remember my whole life through,
But the sweetness will linger forever,
As I treasure the image of you.
- Always loved, your daughter Susan

HOWE, Sandy - My darling I'm happy that you are free of pain. Your everything I sorely miss. So I send you this message with a kiss. Till I see you once again.
- Love Jerry

In memoriam

In Loving Memory of Alyssa Pockett,
Alyssa we love you.
Your sweetness we'll never forget.
We must walk the pathway of life without you.
But we love you without any regrets.
Alyssa we love you and our tears still fall like rain.
But we know you have gone to the mansion beyond.
Where there is not sorrow or pain.
And we will meet in the circle unbroken.
And never be parted again.
- Granma & Grandpa
